Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Illustrated Catalogue of the Field Force Pump Compy s Latest Improved Outfits for Spraying Trees and Vines by Hand and Horse Power A volume might be written on this subject. A few words will explain their use and value. Paris Green, London Purple or other arsenical poisons are not soluble in water, and being so much heavier, settle quickly to the bottom of the tank, and unless the spray pump is provided with an agitator, the work of spraying can be but imperfectly performed. In 1883 we conceived the idea of discharging a stream from the pump back into the tank for the purpose of agitation, and this plan was immediately adopted by other pump manufacturers, and is extensively recommended to this day. While the plan did not give entire satisfaction, it served the purpose very well until the use of Bordeaux Mixture became so generally adopted, then it was found that the lime used with the Bordeaux would settle and harden, and that a return stream discharged from the pump could not raise it from the bottom of the tank. Hence a more perfect and satisfactory means of agitation was necessary. This demand resulted in the invention of our Automatic Mechanical Agitator, shown and described in the following pages, in connection with our Empire Queen (Fig. 62), and our Empire King (Fig. 63). This invention is patented, and the patent owned by this Company. We charge nothing extra to our customers for the right to use this agitator, but no pumps except those made by this Company can be furnished with it; any others embracing this idea would be an infringement of our rights,...
